ALOHA PATROL IS WINNER

Aloha Temple's smallest in Shrinism, has furnished the best Arab Patrol in the befezzed order of the Mystic Shrine.

Captain Sam Johnson and a delegation of the local Shriners who went to the Los Angeles convention and carried away enough laurels to wreath the head of every noble in the order, returned this morning on the Honolulu. Nearly a dozen members of the Arab Patrol have returned and they bear with them documentary evidence, in the shape of newspaper reports and letters, showing that Aloha Temple was the king of them all in the drills and parades at Los Angeles.

Out of the fifty patrols that were assembled at Los Angeles, Aloha Temple's body of twenty-six men was the only one asked to repeat its drills. This was in Los Angeles, when the patrols were drilling out on an immense parade ground before a big grandstand. The grandstand was so big that Aloha Temple was asked to drill three times before its three sections. However, there was no time for this, so the local Shriners went through their evolutions in front of the middle section.

The next day was the day of the big procession in Los Angeles, in which were the Hawaii float and Queen Wilhelmina Weight of Hawaii. During this parade Aloha Temple was asked to stand in front of the grandstand while the parade went past.

Best of Nine Best.
At Pasadena nine picked patrols, the best of the big aggregation, were asked to drill in open competition. When Aloha Temple's patrol finished two of the judges told Captain Johnson his men had made the best showing, and one of the judges was the captain of a patrol that was considered among the leaders, if not next best. While no formal first place was awarded in this competition, Aloha was given first place by the newspapers and the spectators generally.

"Aloha won because we went through our drills with more snap and precision," said Captain Johnson this morning. "Several of the patrols were much larger than ours and had more intricate and spectacular evolutions. But none were more beautiful and none had the precision, the military excellence, of Aloha. You never saw men drill better than the Honolulu boys. We went from one evolution to the other without coming back to the first formation, which was something new."

CALL REIDFORD IN MAHUKA CASE

Robert R. Reidford, manager for the Bishop Trust Co., Ltd., testifying before the Federal jury, an expert, this morning estimated that the interest of the Austin estate in the property included in the Mahuka site is worth $69,188.32, and that it is saleable for that amount. His figures were based on the valuations taken on December 23, 1910. In the same manner he figured that the interest of the Cummins estate is worth and is saleable for $10,014.70.

These figures included the land, estimated to be worth $17.50 per square foot, the leases, running for seven years and nine months and for seven years and eight months, respectively, figured at their present value; the improvements, the buildings and their rentals.

In making these deductions, discount was figured at 5 per cent. on the leases. Several leaseholders in the same vicinity were questioned early in the morning on approximate value of leases in that neighborhood. The hearings continue daily from 9:30 to 12:30, when adjournment is taken until the following day.

SHOW DOGS NOT QUARANTINED

Although Mrs. George M. Pullman and Mrs. Frank E. Wilbur of Boston couldn't get their blue-blooded Japanese pug into Hawaii without a four months' quarantine, the troupe of dogs that arrived on the Makura yesterday for the Bijou were put through under the special dispensation and will be enabled to appear with the show.

BRINGS NEWS OF PACIFIC FLEET

Fair weather and only one slight accident to the machinery brought the Navy transport Buffalo into port last night, 15 days out from Olongapo. It was summer sailing all the way, and the trip would have been a pleasure voyage to everyone aboard had it not been for the fact that the transport carried an unusually large number of marines homeward bound, who, together with the blue-jacketed short-timers and ship's regular complement, made it close quarters on the transport. The Buffalo is taking nearly 1,000 men whose time in the Navy or Marine Corps is up or almost up, back to the States for discharge. Two-thirds of these are marines.

Commander Clarence E. Stone is in command of the Buffalo. The transport has only been in the Far East a few months, having touched here on her outward voyage shortly before the Pacific fleet received its sailing orders.

Officers of the Buffalo bring the news that the Pacific fleet commenced target practice May 18. If the schedule in force when the transport sailed was carried out, all of the ships have been hard at work preparing for the shooting, the Colorado especially bending every effort toward making a fine score, and winning the general efficiency pennant. Last fall the Colorado stood No. 1 of all the ships of the Navy in the Autumn practice, and her gun crews have high hopes for first honors now, although she is considerably handicapped for steaming.

It is the general opinion that when the Pacific fleet makes its homeward voyage it will be by way of Guam and Honolulu, and not by China ports, Yokohama and the great circle, as previously surmised, owing to the fact that the Colorado for a certainty, and possibly some of the other ships, couldn't carry coal enough for the run from Yokohama across the Colorado being no better as a cruising proposition than when she came across from the Coast last November.

There is a dearth of China news aboard. The word is that the revolution is now so far as imperial troops are concerned, but that the republican army is divided against itself, with factions of the government jockeying for control of the situation. Marine officers who have recently been in China repeat, however, the word brought here some months ago that both sides are taking good care to leave foreigners alone and give no grounds for intervention.

The Buffalo reached last night and this morning, taking on about 800 tons. She sails at daylight tomorrow morning for Mare Island. Besides officers and men aboard there are two monkeys and two dogs which are very important personages, and which live together in one happy family.

Officers on board besides the regular ship's complement consist of six from the Marine Corps and four from the Navy. Captain Giles Bishop, Jr., is in command of the marines going home, and the other officers are Captains H. H. Kip and C. S. Owen, Lieutenants W. N. Hill, M. E. Shaver, and Ross E. Howell, Surgeons H. W. B. Turner and D. G. Allen, and Ensigns R. E. Hughes and E. F. Clement are the others.

DUKE'S FEAT AMAZED CROWD

That Duke Kahanamoku will be one of ten crack swimmers to go over a 200-yard course in open water at New York early next month to qualify four men for the Olympic relay team, is the news received in a letter from Duke to his friend and former manager, Lew G. Henderson.

W. W. HARRIS GOES TO COAST; SAID ON POLITICS

W. W. Harris left suddenly for the coast today, taking the Sierra. He declined to discuss the nature of his mission, but it is said that it is connected with politics.

The report that he was going to Washington in connection with the proposed Kona railway, the bill which is before Congress, proved untrue. Willard Brown, one of the men prominently identified with the plans for the new road, said that Mr. Harris visit has nothing to do with the affairs of the road.

The tentative date for the opening of the tax appeal court for the island of Maui has been set at June 12. This, however, is subject to change.

A COMPROMISE NOW ARRANGED

The city fathers sidestepped the matter of closing a deal for the acquisition of land for the widening of Hotel street last evening because some of the minor details had not been considered.

Supervisor Murray has on file a mass of data which has been gathered in the attempt to arrange a satisfactory compromise between the municipality and the property owners, tenants and other interested parties.

A meeting called for next Monday evening will probably determine the future line of action to be followed by the board in the closing of a deal and the assessment of betterments to adjoining property owners.

Paving comes high, according to the estimates submitted by Engineer Whitehouse, who, in response to a request from the board, gave figures on bitulithic, Warrantite, wood block and all macadam proposed for a number of downtown streets. Bishop street, a two-inch bitulithic surface over a four-inch concrete base, at $2400; with macadam base, $2100.

King street between Nuuanu and Alakea, the cost for a four-inch obla block pavement with concrete base with cement top at $12,500. The same base with two-inch bitulithic finish would cost approximately $10,500.

Two side of Emma street and driveway around Emma Square with obla macadam, six inches thick, and bitulithic finish, the cost is estimated at approximately $14,600. If Warrantite is used as a substitute for bitulithic the cost would be $12,200.

No more digging of streets, especially as it may apply to the laying of new mains along Queen street, will prevent the pavement of that thoroughfare, according to a statement coming from Superintendent of Public Works Campbell. The board has been notified that the Territory has completed its work of laying mains, and that all that remains to be done is the planting of an oil pipe service, this work being under the direction of the harbor commission.

The Outdoor Circle of the Kilauea Art League stands ready to attend to the cleaning up of Queen Emma Park in Nuuanu Valley. In a communication to the Board of Supervisors the clashes suggest that Territorial prisoners be set upon the job. They also advise that the unsightly fence planted in the midst of Kalakaua avenue be reduced to twelve feet in width. The enclosure as it is at present gives forth a wrong impression as a sample of a proposed parking scheme.

It will cost $3500 to complete the work of making Prospect street passable with a covering of oil macadam, according to an estimate from Engineer Whitehouse.

The city fathers have accepted an invitation to be present at the memorial day exercises to be held Thursday, May 30, under the auspices of veterans from George W. De Long Post, G. A. R.

Telling the story of her husband's brutality, which culminated yesterday in his attempt to murder her on Mount Tantalus by hanging her to a tree, Mrs. Mabel R. Freitas this morning asked Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Brown if some way can be found whereby she can leave the man and return to her parents with her child. Mrs. Freitas appeared at the police station today and told the remarkable story of how her husband tried to kill her, and how, half-conscious, she managed to cut the hangrope and free herself.
